United Nations University Institute on Computing and Society (UNU-CS)

The United Nations University Institute on Computing and Society (UNU-CS) is a new research institute at the intersections of information and communication technologies and international development. Located in Macau SAR, China, UNU-CS focuses on the key challenges faced by developing societies through high-impact innovations in computing and communication technologies.

UNU-CS will

• Lead in investigating and inventing human centered information and communication technologies addressing some of the priorities central to the United Nations and the world such as: sustainability, development, governance and peace and security.
• Impact policymakers, within the UN system and beyond, through actionable knowledge and thought-leadership.
• Nurture the next generation of inter-disciplinary computer scientists, social scientists and designers in developing countries.
• Embrace the enormous dynamism of the city of Macau and Pearl River Delta region while still working globally.

For more information please visit http://cs.unu.edu.
UNU-CS is seeking to hire Research Assistants with relevant skills, experience and background to support research within its three emerging action-oriented Labs:

- Digital Peace Lab: ICTs for peacebuilding and to support human security, respond to crises, and mitigate human displacement.
- Gender Tech Lab: ICTs that promote women’s empowerment and enable sustainable community led development.
- Small Data Lab: ICTs that create actionable knowledge from local data, empower citizens with data they trust, and improve global datasets with local data
