Given the recent drastic social and political change in the international community, including the US and Europe, conventional capitalism is being challenged, and the roles played by global companies in society are rapidly evolving and expanding. This event will explore how global companies can contribute to mainstreaming the SDGs. Speakers and participants will exchange views and experiences, considering new modes of corporate management in the context of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

Norihiro Takahashi

Government Pension Investment Fund, Japan

Takao Aiba

Toyota Motor Corporation

Yuriko Yamamoto

AEON Co., Ltd.

The event will discuss key questions such as:

- How can global companies integrate social and environmental agendas into corporate management — not only from a corporate social responsibility perspective, but in order to maintain competitiveness in the face of a global paradigm shift?
- How can environmental, social, and governance (ESG) investment criteria be linked to the 2030 Agenda?

It will be co-organized with the Sustainable Development Solutions Network Japan (SDSN Japan), with the support of Nikkei Inc., the Global Compact Network Japan, and CDP.
