

'Mandela and I' Monthly Lecture Series for Students

(Photo: Courtesy of the South African Embassy, Tokyo)

United Nations University Institute for Advanced Studies of Sustainability (UNU-IAS) is initiating, with the cooperation of the South African Embassy, a Monthly Lecture Series on the theme of 'Mandela and I.'

This new endeavor aims at providing students, who will assume major responsibility for the future of the global community, an opportunity to deepen and share their understanding of the power and leadership of an individual in the present world through studying the lessons and legacies of Nelson Mandela, former President of the Republic of South Africa, who passed away in December 2013,

The planning and management of the Monthly Lecture Series will be carried out by the Mandela and I Project Secretariat with the participation of students.

First Monthly Lecture on "Mandela and I"

Lecturer : Dr. Mohau Pheko, Ambassador of South Africa to Japan

Date/time: 27 September 2014 (Saturday) 14 : 00~15 : 30

Venue: United Nations University Reception Hall (2F)
(5-53-70 Jungumae, Shibuya-ku, Tokyo 150-8926)

Language: English (No interpretation into Japanese)

Organizer: UNU-IAS

Co-organizer: South African Embassy, Tokyo

Attendance: Free (Prior registration necessary)

Program :

13:30 Entry to venue

14:00 Opening

14:05 Lecture by Ambassador Mohau Pheko

14:50 Question & Answer and discussion

15:30 Closing

* Following the end of the meeting, there will be an informal exchange of views (about an hour) between the secretariat and interested participants about the future organization of the Mandela and I Project. Your participation is welcome.

To register, please visit the UNU-IAS website.

