Programme Lead: Catalysing Health Policy Improvement in Africa
18-month full time contract

Exciting opportunity to manage a multi-country programme of work in five African countries: Senegal, Burkina Faso, Tanzania, Uganda and Mozambique.

The successful candidate will be employed by the United Nations University International Institute for Global Health (UNU-IIGH), but be based in Sub-Saharan Africa preferably in Senegal, Burkina Faso, Tanzania, Uganda or Mozambique.

The aim of the programme is to promote maternal, newborn, sexual and reproductive health policy improvement through a model of external assistance that is decolonial and nationally led and considerate of the need to strengthen local research and policy-making systems and institutions.

UNU-IIGH will be working with and through our core partner organisations: the West Africa Health Organisation, the Makerere University School of Public Health, the Ifakara Health Institute and the Universidade Eduardo Mondlane.
